

For the past day or two sensational reports have been afloat on the streets that Miss Anna Hochwalt, who dropped dead before her mother a few weeks ago, while her brother was preparing to go to church to get married, had been buried alive. It is stated she was placed in a tomb, and when put in the grave on Saturday the coffin was opened, when it was discovered she had turned over on her face, and in her agonies had pulled much of her hair out of her head, and otherwise disfigured herself. It is unknown how these reports commenced, but there is not the shadow of foundation in them. A reporter has thoroughly investigated the matter, and the corpse of Miss Anna Hochwalt is calmly sleeping the sleep of death in her grave, just as she was placed in her coffin a few weeks ago.
